We could only wish that as the Hawaiian and the missionaries are co-heirs, the former had been allowed to learn the language of the latter, if it were only for the sake of talking over the prospects which they enjoy in common. And this brings us to the point. At the annual meeting had on the 26th May, 1860. "interesting remarks were made by Fathers Thurston, Coan, Armstrong, Andrews, Galiek and Baldwin;" so they must have been there, but how many more of the seniors were on the spot we do not know. Well, the Report of the Recording Secretary (already quoted from) was then read, and in it are to be found these remarkable words:

At the first regular incetting of the past year, the following resolutions, suggested by one of the Fathers, at their last annual eting, were proposed:

Be it resolved, That it is the duty of each member of this Society to learn the Hawaiian language.

2 Resolved, That it be considered the duty of every member of this Society to endeavor to instruct one or more of the kanaka children.

The first of these was unanimously adopted by the Society.

Now, we are neither over fastidious nor hypercritical, but we dislike that expression "kanaka children." In the first place, it is a vulgarism; in the second place it will not bear the test of etymology, and in the third place it conveys to the mind an idea of superciliousness, as if the speaker were looking down upon those to whom he alluded, and regarding them in anything but the light in which the "fathers and mothers" of the missionary family are said to have looked upon the Hawaiian race as "their brethren." It does not, in one word, recommend itself as being in keeping with the "equality," " intimacy" and "harmony," and that absence of " foolish prejudices or distinctions" which look so well in the President's Re-

But the feature of the second extract which is really worthy of comment, is that it lets us into a very curious fact as to the present policy of the missionary body. It was resolved to be the duty of each member of the Society to learn the Hawaiian language. Now seeing that they were born here and dandled in the arms of Hawaiian nurses, and served ever since by Hawaiian domesties; that in all their ordinary out-of-door occupations they must have had fully as much to do with Hawaiians as with people speaking the English tougue, whilst their fathers preached and taught in the language of the country-it certainly does seem very strange that they should not have learnt it before. Other children pick it up readily enough, some parents say too readily. From what force of suppression, then, or through what interdiction does it happen that the children of the missionaries have now to acquire artificially what other children have taken in the natural way? The answer will rise to every one's lips. The Hawaiian language was considered so impure that they were studiously kept from having any knowledge of it. But now, every member of the Society in question is to learn it, from the little Abbies and Maggies and Hatties and Hettys, that are just beginning to toddle, up to the young men who are already at Oahu College. There must be some change in the wind or some prognostical cloud to account for this tack, for certainly there is no change for better in the language. Is it that they are taken with a desire to fit themselves for the ministry and for teachers of schools, or for appointments under Government, or is it a simple act of perverseness, that while the English language is being called for at all hands, they are overcome with this sudden zeal for the once proscribed vernacular? For this unexpected movement there may be some occult reason which does not appear upon the face of things, but it ought to be a very good reason indeed to justify that pollution of thought which it has been said the young mind must necessarily acquire with the native language, and that too at a time when the native language from the very nature of things and from the efforts which the Government is at last making to disseminate, and substitute for it the English language, is becoming every day of less importance day transactions of life. But there was another proposition made at the same time which must recommend itself to the 28th inst. common sense of every practical mind, and which if adopted would have done honor to the Society. It was to this effect, as may be seen above : " That it be considered the duty of every member of this Society to endeavor to instruct one or more of the kanaka children." Now, if it had appeared that the children of the missionaries were to be allowed to learn the Hawaiian language with a view to imparting to some of the little natives such instruction as even that language ill convey, we could have seen some justification, and argument resolution was "unanimously adopted," the proposition to teach "was lost." So here we are again, all out at sea, without any harbor into which we may run for a solution of the puzzle. For our part we would rather see a young Hawaiian nothing of his pupil's own language. The course of instruction would then begin at the real beginning, and the child having mastered in his tender years that language which is a key to all knowledge, whilst it is more generally used than any of what are called the civilized tongues, would have been prepared for any finish of which his mental means of making himself understood in almost every part of the world. But the idea of instruction, whether through this medium or that, was thrown overboard, and the native children are not to learn of the children of those who taught their home fathers. And so the matter rests, and all that can be made out of it is, that there is a counter plan on foot to perpetuate the use of the Hawaiian language, by making it less imperative on the native youth to learn the English, for as the children of the missionaries, already a numerous body and every year increasing, are likely to spend the greater portion of their days here, so far, at all with them if they do know no language but that rude one of their forefathers.

attended only by the children, we should not parents who may entrust their children to his care. have made the foregoing remarks, but, as we have shown above, several, if not many, of their fathers were present, and the resolutions in question were suggested by one of those fathers. The movement must therefore be looked upon as part of the policy of the body in general. We are sorry for it. By those who were not altogether prepossessed it has been said from time to time that they favor- nicely made up in 5 lb. bag ed the continued use of the Hawaiian language, as a means of retaining influence in their own hands, they being better and more generally acquainted with it than other persons of foreign birth. We wish we could discover anything in the two resolutions in question that would give us the opportunity to refute that incinuation .

PAST WEEK.

The R. W. Wood.

This fine packet bark, which arrived here on Saturday last, was built at Oldenberg to the order of H. Hack feld & Co., and named after one of our old and influen tial residents, Dr. R. W. Wood. Her keel and most of her frame was originally designed for another vessel but having the advantage of eighteen months seasoning, she was purchased on the stocks and entrusted to the hands of Johann Ahlers, a famous builder on the Weser To his son, a recent graduate of the Polytechnic Institute at Rochefort, France, was detailed the care of remodeling and drafting her, and the manner in which he has done it is evident to every admirer of naval architecture. To seafaring people, or those who take an interest in ships or maritime affairs generally, the following dimensions of this beautiful vessel may not be uninteresting: Length of keel, 127 feet (German); length over all, 138 do.; extreme breadth of beam, 27 do.; depth of hold, 13 1-2 do.; height of mainmas above deck, 56 do.; foremast, 33 do.; mizzenmast, 36 do.; bowsprit, 13 do.; jibboon, 21 do.; from main deck to main-royal truck, 107 do. There are eight state-rooms, fitted with two berths each, and also room for two more, and forms contrived so as to be easily converted into berths on an emergency. She is built of German oak, in the most thorough and workmanlike manner, and copper fastened throughout. Our limits prevent us saying any more at present, but we advise those who like to see a fine ship and a good sailer to give the R. W. Wood a call.

Fete Day of His Majesty the Emperor of the Wednesday, the 15th instant, being the anniversary Fete of his Majesty, the Emperor of the French, his Commissioner, M. Perrin, received the calls of the King's Ministers, of the Chancellor and Judges of the Supreme Court, of the President and Members of the House of Nobles, of the Speaker of the Honorable House of Representatives accompanied by the Hon. Mr. Knudsen, of his Excellency the Governor of Oahu, of several High Chiefs, of the Acting British and American Commissioners, of most of the foreign Consuls; and of several of the chief residents.

In celebration of the day, there was a religious ser vice in the Catholic cathedral, and a soirce and ball in the evening, in the Legation of France, honored by the presence of their Majesties the King and Queen, and by a select number of ladies and gentlemen.

Early in the morning a party of French subjects, waited upon the Commissioner with a serenade around the French flag, expressly in honor of their Emperor There was the usual display of bunting throughout the Death of Judge Griswold.

At a meeting of the Judges, the Bar and the officers of the Court, at the office of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, at the Court House, Honolulu, on Friday the 17th day of August, 1860, Present-Chief Justice Allen, Justice Robertson, Justice II, Justice Davis, A. B. Bates, C. C. Harris, J. W. Austin, Lawrence McCully, W. C. Parke.

thief Justice was unanimously elected to the Chair, and Mr. Barnard was requested to act as Secretary. Justice Robertson presented the following resolutions for the consideration of

Resolved, that all now present have heard with deep and sincere sorrow of the death of Joseph P. Griswild, Esq., late Police Justice of Honolulu and a member of the Hawaiian Bar, who, by the marked ability with which he discharged his duty as a magistrate, by his learning and attainments as a lawyer, and by his arbanity and gentlemanly deportment in all the relations of life, obtained and justly deserved the confidence of the Government and the highest esteem of this community.

Resolved, That we heartily condole with the relatives of our eceased friend, and tender them our warmest sympathy on the Resolved, That the District Attorney of Oahu be requested to forward a copy of these resolutions to the mother of the deceased; to present them to the Supreme Court at its next term, with a motion that they be placed of record, and also to cause the same to be published in the Polynesian and Commercial Ad-

Mr. J. W. Austin moved that the resolutions be adopted, which motion was seconded by Judge Davis, and after a few remarks by the Chief Justice expressive of his high appreciation of the character of Judge Griswold, the resolutions were unanimously adopted. The meeting then adjourned.

H. R. H. Prince Kamehameha.

We know that it will afford our readers as much pleasure to learn, as it gives us to inform them, that H. R. H., Prince Kamehameha, has now so far recovered from his late severe sickness as to be able to take some gentle exercise on horseback during the morning hours. We learn further that, upon the advice of the physicians, the Prince has concluded to try a trip to Victoria, V. L. perhaps California, and the effects of a sea voyage and change of climate, in order fully to re-establish his health.

That the prayers and best wishes of every inhabitant of this land go with him, we need not assure him, and that the kindliest reception awaits him and even a matter of less convenience in the everyacross the pond, we are equally certain. The Prince takes passage on board the clipper schooner Emma Rooke for Victoria, V. I., and will leave about the Return of Hon. G. M. Robertson, Associate Justice of Supreme Court.

The Hon. Geo. M. Robertson, Member of the King's Privy Council of State, returned on the 13th instant from Vancouver's Island and Puget Sound, and has resumed his official duties as Associate Judge of the Supreme Court, reinvigorated in health.

He was received at Victoria by his Excellency Governor Douglas, Chief Justice Cameron and others, with the most distinguished respect, which, while extremely in favor, of the first resolution. But although that gratifying to him personally, marked the high regard entertained by the Government of British Columbia for the Sovereign of the Hawaiian Kingdom.

And such was ever the rule of all the high officers and agents of the Hon. Hudson's Boy Co., the withtaken in hand by a missionary child who knew drawal of which establishment from this capital, is

Changes and Improvements.

During the past week Messrs. C. Brewer & Co have completed their alterations in the maksi end o the Market House recently vacated by Mr. James I. Dowsett-knocked down the partition formerly dividing the two portions of the lower part, and thrown the whole length of the building open as store-house, making one of the largest, most commodious and convenient business places in town.

By a notice in our advertising columns it will be seen that W. A. Aldrich, Esq., has, after some slight alterations and repairs, removed his business from Makee's block into those well-known premises so long occupied by the Hon, Hudson's Bay Co., and only now become vacant by the changes in their business relations; some account of which we gave our readers in a previous number.

A framed building, 40 by 25 feet, to be occupied jointly as a butcher shop by Capt. John Meek and Mr. S. H. Dowsett, is being erected at the lower corner of Nuuanu and Queen Streets. It will, when completed, be a substantial and commodious provision mart, partly filling up that large, open space on, and more clearly defining the southern side of the last mentioned street, in that vicinity, especially as we understand that the two small shops are to be removed, leaving Nuuanu street clear to the water. Messrs, Janion, Green & Co. have had built on their large lot, corner of Queen and Fort Streets, and immediately adjoining the stone building of Messrs. J. Robinson & Co., a store house 60 by 26 feet and also a stable.

There are a number of other changes in contemplation, which we will mention as they occur.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE POLYNESIAN. SIR: The following is a fair translation of a paragraph in a slip issued by the Editor of the Hae Hawaii, on Thursday last, as a " stopper" on the Prostitution Act:

"Remember that man is weak, and cannot of himself remove the ills that come upon him. Therefore you should look to Heaven for aid, as did the people of Hilo, in the time of their trouble. Hilo was saved, and why should not the people of this nation be saved."

The Rev. Mr. Coan argued that the lava flow from Mauna Loa, which at one time threatened to destroy Hilo, was stopped by the prayers of the righteous in that district. Here we have the same doctrine put forward by the Clerk of the Board of Education (Editor of the Hae) as a reason why we should pursue a course of "masterly inactivity" in regard to the great evil of prostitution. Cromwell's advice to his soldiers was "Put your trust in God, and keep your powder dry"-our modern would-be-Cromwells tell us to mind the first part of the advice, and let the powder

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the arrival, on the 16th, of the clipper ship Polynesia, Capt. Morse, from San Francisco, en route for Baker's Island, we are placed in possession of dates to the 3d of August, from that place, and four days later news from the East per Pony Express to Carson City. As the Polynesia was coming out of the bay on the evening of the 3d she met the mail steamer from Panama going in. Probably we shall not receive her mails until the arrival of the Frances Palmer, which vessel made a very quick passage over (14 days) from here, arriving at San Francisco on the 1st. She is probably on her return passage by this time, and may be expected all the latter part of this month. From our exchanges we glean

The U. S. sloop-of-war Cyane was at Mazatlan July 7. H. B. M.'s ship Cyclops was at the Society Islands June 23, soon to sail for Valparaiso.

The schooner Wamp was reported at Cape St. Lucas about the middle of July. This is probably the same vessel which brought the natives from some of the southern islands to Kauai, six or seven months ago, and last reported by Capt. THE EXPEDITIONS TO SICILY .- The Government of Sardinia continues to openly favor the expedition of volunteers going to assist Garibaldi.
